Overview

The Department was founded in 1982 and started to offer a bachelor's degree in accounting since then. In 1999, the Department started to offer a master's degree in accounting.

The Department aims to gualify students in theory and practice in the field of accounting to meet the dynamic needs of labor markets, both locally and internationally. The Department is keen on having a special presentation at the local, Arab, and international levels through contributing to the accounting profession and strengthening scientific research.

To realize the above objectives, the Department reviews its academic plans for the Bachelor and Master degrees regularly so that these plans take into consideration any new developments in social needs and market demands. This also contributes to improving the competitiveness of the Department's graduates in the labor markets.

The Department is also keen on holding conferences and participating in local, regional, and international conferences. Finally, the Department includes faculty members who have received their Ph.D. and Master's degrees from distinguished universities and in different areas of accounting.
